There doesn't seem to be a wp-config.php file. I need this before we can get started.

Need more help? We got it.

You can create a wp-config.php file through a web interface, but this doesn't work for all server setups. The safest way is to manually create the file.

Create a Configuration File

Welcome to WordPress. Before getting started, we need some information on the database. You will need to know the following items before proceeding.

- 1. Database name
- 2. Database username
- 3. Database password
- 4. Database host

Let's go!

5. Table prefix (if you want to run more than one WordPress in a single database)

If for any reason this automatic file creation doesn't work, don't worry. All this does is fill in the database information to a configuration file. You may also simply open wp-config-sample.php in a text editor, fill in your information, and save it as wp-config.php.

In all likelihood, these items were supplied to you by your Web Host. If you do not have this information, then you will need to contact them before you can continue. If you're all ready...

Below you should enter your database connection details. If you're not sure about these, contact your host.

Το όνομα της βάσης που δώσατε πριν

Your MySQL username

...and your MySQL password.

You should be able to get this info from your web host, if localhost does not work.

If you want to run multiple WordPress installations in a single database, change this.

All right, sparky! You've made it through this part of the installation. WordPress can now communicate with your database. If you are ready, time now to...

Welcome

Welcome to the famous five minute WordPress installation process! You may want to browse the ReadMe documentation at your leisure. Otherwise, just fill in the information below and you'll be on your way to using the most extendable and powerful personal publishing platform in the world.

Information needed

Please provide the following information. Don't worry, you can always change these settings later.
